

Artikel fra det Finske magasin "Coastline" 2002. Coastline 2002

Under better cover

Best-Hall delivers for multiple purposes.

The uses for Best-Hall range from port warehouses to sports halls. Here, a store in Austria.

Mati Sandström / Bildström

Best-Hall's solutions can be found in extreme locations, such as research institutions in Antarctica or oil fields in Russian Surgut, as well as the bustling ports of European metropolises. The halls have steel frames and PVC covers, and are built in sizes ranging from 200 to 15,000 square metres. The company has been in business for 27 years, during which it has built halls all over the world. Managing director Leif Kempas is confident that the company structions, our halls hold a competitive advantage in terms of delivery time, price and transferability. They also do not require costly foundation work as the halls are erected directly over asphalt," Kempas explains.

Speed and durability

The halls are quickly erected: a hall of 1,000 square metres can be set up in one week. Best-halls have been

"We customise our halls according to customer wishes," says managing director Leif Kempas of Best-Hall, the leading Scandinavian manufacturer of PVC-covered halls with steel frame.

ball hall to Tallinn, Estonia," says Kempas.

In addition to the halls being portable and easy to transfer, they are very durable.

"The cover material has a tensile strength of 400 kilograms per five centimetres. We have, for example, delivered halls capable of bearing 100 kilograms of snow per square metre to Andorra, famous for its snowy conditions," says Kempas.

One hall per day

Best-Hall is a continually developing and growing company. It delivers approximately 200 halls a year, the tendency being towards increasingly larger constructions. In other words, delivery speeds are close to one hall per working day. Best-Hall was recently awarded for its investment in personnel training.

"We invest in our staff because much of the manufacturing is craftsmanship," explains Kempas. C

Best-Hall Oy

Tel. +358 6 832 5000
Fax +358 6 835 0277
info@besthall.com
www.besthall.com

Business sector: Planning, sales,